

2005 marks the 150th birthday of the City of Ottawa and the fourth anniversary of our city's amalgamation. Events such as these give cause for reflection and offer opportunities to develop awareness of the rich and diverse heritage of the communities that make up our municipality. Manor Park is part of that heritage and its story is rich in history.

Enjoy this section of the website as we look back at different time periods and help understand how Manor Park became such a great place and understand what our predecessors had in mind.

Also look to the future as our Planning and Development Committee discuss the issues that show the face of our community is changing.
